

input - refers to any information a user gives to the program. - reads in a line of input types in by the user or used to display a message to the user, to prompt for specific input.